AGENTS' QUIET WORK TRAPS GANG LEADER

Careful Attention to Detail Piles Up Evidence Against Al Capone.

"UNTOUCHABLES" PRAISED

Group of Eight Young Men Lauded for Refusal To Accept Bribes.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 17—Little groups of men, working methodically, quietly, poring over bank records, following beer trucks and clutching at straws, have accomplished what all the gangs in Chicago couldn't do—overthrow the Capone dynasty.

Back of the government's victory against the Capones, sensational despite the complete surrender of the leader Alphonse, is a story of the tedious attention to detail, colorless work of many months. The story of the men who got the evidence

"Scarface Al" pleaded guilty yesterday rather than attempt to refute that pile of evidence. In a single word, repeated two times—"guilty"—he paid eloquent tribute to those evidence-getters. Their work resulted in charges that he evaded taxes on a six-year income of $1,038,654 and that he and 68 others conspired against the prohibition law at least 5,000 times.

One group of men behind the evidence has been dubbed the "untouchables." It consists of eight young prohibition agents headed by 28-year-old Eliot Ness. They gained their name because beer money could not buy them off. Their activities have come in for high praise since the prohibition conspiracy indictment. Prohibition Director Woodcock at Washington has promised an investigation and report to commend them publicly.

The other group responsible for the two income tax indictments, had the less spectacular task of ferreting out the sources of gangland incomes. Agents of the intelli-

GUNMEN RAID HOME OF N.Y. CIVIC LEADER

Jewels Worth $100,000 Stolen as Bandits Force Owner To Open Safe.

By United Press

NEW YORK, June 17—Three gunmen raided the home of S. Stanwood Menken, prominent lawyer, civic leader and advocate of heavy armament, today, forced Mrs. Menken to open a small wall safe, and escaped with jewelry worth more than $100,000.

Menken had left for his office when the robbery occurred. A man appeared at the front door of the private home and said he had a box of flowers to deliver. He asked a servant to sign for them.

The servant opened the door and started to sign the paper offered. Two other men rushed up from the sidewalk, joined their confederate and forced their way inside, displaying pistols.

They trussed three servants and an upholsterer, who was at work in the house and went upstairs to Mrs. Menken's bedroom.

Mrs. Menken was still asleep. The bandits awakened her, ordered her to get out of bed and open the wall safe in which she kept her jewels. They then scooped up the gems and ran.

The jewels were insured, it was reported, for $150,000.

OHIO CHAIN STORES ESCAPE SPECIAL TAX

House Committee Fails To Recommend Proposed Laws for Passage.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 17—The house taxation committee today killed one bill and failed to give sufficient votes to report out another, designed to tax chain stores in Ohio.

The committee killed the measure of Fred Myers Republican of Toledo which was modeled after the Indiana law recently held constitutional by the United States supreme court. The bill was killed after it had failed to obtain sufficient votes for a recommendation to the house.

Under the Myers bill sliding scale of taxation was provided starting at $3 a year for single stores and reaching a maximum of $50 a year for each store over 20 operated by one company.

The bill of Representative Charles Justus, Democrat of Columbus, providing a tax of $50 per store on chains of from one to five stores and $100 for each store in chains exceeding five stores failed to receive sufficient votes for a recommendation. It probably will not be considered further during the present session, the committee indicated.

HIT BY AUTO; LEGS BROKEN

Mt. Victory Man's Injuries Most Serious Reported in Dedication Traffic.

THREE HURT IN COLLISION

Several Overcome by Heat at Memorial Grounds; Guardsman Hurt.

O. H. Finney, 52, of Mt. Victory, suffered serious injuries in an accident last night at Park and George streets. Both legs were broken and his head was bruised.

The accident was the most serious of any reported as a result of the heavy traffic in Marion yesterday. Mrs. Roy Bailey and daughter Leora, 5, of Meeker, were treated at City hospital yesterday at 1:30 p. m. for injuries suffered in an automobile accident on the Kenton pike.

Several persons overcome by the heat at the memorial grounds were taken to their homes, and one of the soldiers directing traffic at Hill and Prospect streets was hit when he stepped in front of a machine. His slight bruises were given first-aid treatment and he resumed his duties.

Finney started to walk across George street at Park street when he was hit at 11 p. m. The driver of the car which struck him picked him up and laid him on the grass until the W. C. Boyd ambulance arrived and removed him to City hospital. The driver gave his name as Edgar Beatty of east Farming street. He left the hospital saying that he had to go to work at the railroad yards.

Finney's right leg was broken in two places and his left leg was broken below the knee. His daughter, Mrs. Robert Dildine of Richwood, Finney's former home, said this morning that he could not recall any description of the accident.

Mrs. Bailey and her infant daughter were hurt when Mr. Bailey, watching a freight train, drove into a machine ahead of them driven by I. Calabrese of Lemoyne, O. Mrs. Bailey was thrown against the dashboard and her legs were cut and bruised. The baby suffered slight scalp wounds. Thelena Calabrese, daughter of I. Calabrese, was cut on the back of the head by flying glass. Mrs. Bailey, her child and Miss Calabrese were treated at City hospital where they were taken in the W. C. Boyd ambulance.

RAILROADS ASK FOR FREIGHT RATE BOOST

Carriers Contend 15 Per Cent More Necessary To Assure Adequate Service.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 17—Railroads of the United States today presented to the interstate commerce commission their petition for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates as a means of meeting the emergency caused by the drastic decline in operating revenues.

Last Thursday the executives of ~~eastern, western~~ and southern roads, meeting in New York City, finally decided to request the blanket increase designed to yield annually $400,000,000 in additional gross income.

As evidence of their desire for assistance without undue delay, the carriers recommended that the commission's investigation of their application be of a "limited character" for the purpose of determining whether the new schedules should be allowed to become effective without the 90-day suspension usually ordered when rate revisions are made.

Long Process Necessary

Even if this procedure is followed, it is unofficially pointed out, it will probably be early autumn before the necessary hearings can be completed and a decision reached.

The brief, asserting that the roads were "confronted with an emergency threatening serious impairment of their financial resources and their capacity to assure the public a continuance of efficient and adequate service," said the increased revenues would yield a yearly railway net operating income equal to less than 4 per cent on the value of their property. The fair return prescribed by law is 5.75 per cent, but during the first four months of this year, the application said, the return had fallen to an annual basis of 2.24 per cent for the class one carriers.

10 MORE MINES ARE GUARDED BY PICKETS

New Complications Arise in Coal District Near St. Clairsville, O.

By The Associated Press

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 17—Pickets were established at 15 coal mines in the Belmont county district by strikers today as deputy sheriffs were investigating the cutting last night on telephone wires to the Powhattan district.

Twelve strikers were arrested today for various minor disturbances about the mine properties. Previously the National Miners Union had picketed only five mines of this district.

Sheriff Howard Duff and his 75 deputies attempted to maintain a patrol of the 15 mines but were unable to cope with the pickets at times, he said. The sheriff and Major J. A. Plount of the Ohio National guard and Prosecutor Paul Waddell of Belmont county held a conference on plans for meeting the new situation.

The pickets were placed around additional mines when the National Miners Union announced that it had delegated the operation of the strike to special strike committees at each workings.

A letter announcing the intention of the order to accept the invitation of the city and visit the Harding Memorial while enroute to the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine in Cleveland in July, was received this morning by Mayor L. Don Jones from J. M. Jackson of Syrian Temple in Cincinnati.

The letter is the first definite acceptance of the city's invitation to be received by the mayor, although a number of letters have been received from temples in various parts of the country saying that if it could be arranged, they would be glad to visit the memorial.

The Cincinnati delegation of 200 members, according to the letter, will visit the memorial July 12. They will arrive at 3:30 p. m. and will be escorted to the memorial by members of the local order.

Several hundred letters extending an invitation to visit the memorial while enroute to Cleveland were sent to the various temples in the country by Mayor L. Don Jones, the chamber of commerce and civic leaders in March.

"Most Human" President, Will Terms Harding

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 17. Mighty glad to see Mr. Hoover and Mr. Coolidge finally (after years of delay) go out and dedicate the Harding memorial.

Too bad they waited till Ohio looked politically doubtful, and the odd thing about it is that they both owe their presidency to this man's death. If he had lived one would have retired as an ex-cabinet member and the other as just another ex-vice-president.

They ought to have been just standing waiting for it to be finished in order to do their part for there was certainly nothing to be ashamed of in being there.

Harding was the most human of any of our late presidents; there was more of the real "every day man" in him. If he had a weakness it was in trusting his friends, and the man that don't do that then there is something the matter with him.

She 'nuff betrayed by friendship is not a bad memorial to leave.

Yours,

Will Rogers

FORMER MUNICIPAL OFFICIAL ASSAILED

Took "Secret Salary" from Light Company Official, Prosecutor Charges.

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 17—Harry Engle, former city traction commissioner, was paid a secret compensation of $100 to $500 a month while he was commissioner, special Prosecutor Fred Heim asserted today in his opening statement in the trial of Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas of Mahoning county on a charge of blackmailing Engle.

Engle's official salary was $6,000 a year, paid by the Youngstown Municipal Railway Co., subsidiary of the Pennsylvania-Ohio Power & Light Co. under a service-at-cost franchise.

HOOVER PROTESTS AIRPLANES OVER DEDICATION CROWD

Commerce Secretary Lamont Orders Three Pilots Grounded Until Investigation of Demonstration Is Made; President Requests Action.

ESTIMATES ON SIZE OF CROWD VARY

Figures Range from 40,000 to 100,000; A. D. Taylor, Memorial Landscape Architect, and Dr. C. W. Sawyer Base 50,000 Number on Area Filled.

Three pilots who flew their planes over the Harding memorial during the dedication exercises yesterday had been ordered grounded today as federal authorities proceeded on a request of President Hoover to make examples of the three, Associated Press dispatches disclosed.

The President was much disturbed over the interference and interruption in the program caused by the planes which flew low over the crowd a number of times. Officials are proceeding on laws prohibiting aviators from disturbing public meetings. If these laws do not provide for the elimination of such interruptions, the President will recommend effective laws at the next session of congress, dispatches said.

Action started yesterday when the President conferred with Secretary Lamont of the commerce department controlling and licensing airplanes after Lamont had boarded the President's train at Columbus. Lamont today telephoned instructions to the aviation division to have the pilots grounded until a complete investigation can be made.

Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson announced in Columbus today that in future public meetings where the national guardsmen are used, he will assign the 112th Ohio National Guard air squadron to prevent planes from disturbing public gatherings.

Estimate Crowd as High as 100,000

A huge throng representing every section of the country visited Marion yesterday afternoon to witness the dedication of Harding memorial.

Although the estimated number of persons present is a matter of conjecture, estimates range from 40,000 to 100,000. Among these is an estimate worked out on a basis of measurements by A. D. Taylor of Cleveland, landscape architect, who designed the memorial grounds, and Dr. Carl W. Sawyer. They placed the crowd figure at 50,000 on a basis that each spectator occupied two and a half square feet.

10,000 Line Streets

It is estimated that another 10,000 persons lined the streets to catch a glimpse of President Hoover and former President Coolidge passing on the way to the memorial.

HOOVER VISITS LINCOLN TOMB

Address at Springfield, Ill., Today Last of Western Trip.

STRUCTURE REDEDICATED

Rebuilt After 57 Years; First Dedicated by Grant in 1874.

BY AUBREY CRIBB

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 17—The memory of Abraham Lincoln brought President Hoover today to the emancipator's tomb.

The home and the very room in which Lincoln received word of his nomination in 1860 beckoned Mr. and Mrs. Hoover for a brief visit before dedicating the reconstructed tomb.

Rebuilt after 57 years, the tomb was first dedicated in 1874 by President Ulysses S. Grant.

Today thousands flocked to Oakridge cemetery to view its pristine impressiveness with their president.

Statutes Reproduced

A huge sculptored head of Lincoln over the entrance-way is the only outwardly change in the tomb. Inside, the brown marble sarcophagus shares its rich memories with only a dozen reproductions of famous statutes of the martyred president. The crypts of Mrs. Lincoln and two sons have been removed.

Twenty-eight companies of the Illinois National Guard patrolled the city's streets and the line of march from the governor's mansion to the tomb.

President and Mrs. Hoover arrived here at 9.15 a. m. today. They were greeted by Governor and Mrs. Emmerson, leaders of the Illinois assembly and a presidential salute of 21 guns.

Addresses Legislators

The President emphasized the duties of state governments today before the Illinois assembly and warned that "our machinery of government must be shifted some" to meet the change in economic and other conditions.

Mr. Hoover reminded the Illinois legislators that state governments are very often the "laboratories" in which national ideas are first tried out.

He spoke before a legislature which recently voted repeal of the state prohibition enforcement act. He stood beside the governor who vetoed that action.

The President spoke in the huge state arsenal across from the state capitol where the Illinois assembly was in joint session with a throng of guests.

SEE FALL'S HOPE OF CLEMENCY VANISH

Hoover's Marion Address Is Taken To Indicate Term Must Be Served.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 17—Albert B. Fall apparently had no hope for executive clemency today as a result of the remarks of President Hoover yesterday in dedicating the Harding memorial at Marion, O.

The former secretary of the interior in the Harding cabinet was indirectly referred to by Mr. Hoover, who praised Warren G. Harding and denounced those who betrayed him.

Fall is at El Paso, Texas, awaiting a physical examination to determine whether he is able to serve a year in prison for his conviction of receiving a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil man, in the leasing of government oil lands. He also was fined $100,000. His efforts to have his conviction set aside failed when the supreme court refused to review his case.

Although the President mentioned no names in speaking at the former president's tomb, he said men had betrayed Harding and it "was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed not alone the friendship and trust of their staunch and loyal friend, but they had betrayed their country."

THE GREATER HUDSON EIGHT CLUB SEDAN • $1445

HUDSON Meets Every Requirement of True Luxury—Now It Provides *Selective Free Wheeling

Instinctively you group Hudson with those few cars that men acknowledge as truly fine. But do you compare its price with theirs? That contrast is the emphasis of Hudson value.

Take, for example, the way in which Hudson has progressed with every motor car improvement. Its eight-cylinder motor, built on the principle of the costliest cars, is acclaimed one of the finest power plants to be found in any automobile. Or consider the reliability of the chassis, the sturdiness of its bodies and the many devices that contribute to comfort, reliability and economy.

Look at its various body types. Their style and beauty are apparent. Close examination reveals the completeness and good taste of all appointments. The long wheelbase, the deep cushions and many important mechanical refinements assure Rare Riding Comfort.

Go farther, if you will. Include performance and reliability in your comparison. What other car combines such speed, acceleration and power with the economy that all, regardless of their means, welcome today?

Now we add *Selective Free Wheeling. With it is enjoyed a luxurious floating ride. You shift gears silently. You have quicker getaway. You free wheel in all forward speeds because of the Selective feature. In all other respects it is the same in principle and manufacture as used in the costliest and most pretentious freewheeling cars.

Thus in every way Hudson fulfills every requirement of true luxury. Today's market cannot fail to emphasize Hudson's price advantage.

SEES DECLINE IN GANGSTER'S POWER

Profits of Organized Crime in Chicago Less, U. S. Attorney Says.

By International News Service

CHICAGO—The power of the gangs in Chicago is declining and the profits of organized crime are diminishing, in the opinion of George E. Q. Johnson, United States district attorney here. Citing facts and figures to support his contentions, the veteran law enforcement official declared that the year 1927 saw the high mark of Chicago's underworld and since that year the star of gangdom has steadily descended.

He asserted that the reported earnings in 1930 of Chicago's largest crime syndicate—presumably the organization headed by Scarface Al Capone—compare unfavorably with the income of the same ring in 1927.

"In 1926" District Attorney Johnson said, "the income of this one syndicate was $1,775,552.44. In that year Mayor Dever made a desperate effort to halt the gangs that were overrunning the city and as a result the income of this syndicate was cut to $930,492. In 1927 a campaign was conducted on the issue of an open town and, although the words of the campaign were within the law, the implications were there for the gangsters to hear. Federal attorneys and state's attorneys have told me that the gangsters and hoodlums of their cities came to Chicago by the score.

"In 1927 the syndicate's income, therefore, was $1,787.436. And in 1930, the year that will go down in Chicago's history as the year of out and out lawlessness—the syndicate income was $1,641,979.37."

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, June 18

DESPITE stubborn opposition and open hostility the planetary aspects for this day favor progress and prosperity, with advancement in employment, successful launching of new projects and some happy achievements in the direction of a fulfillment of the ambitions. New contracts are favored and finances are due to increase, but beware strife and litigation, which may be serious handicaps.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of some preferment, favors from superiors, increased finances through employment of new undertakings. But there may be much conflict or opposition, open and sinister, with danger through quarrels or litigation. With acumen and alertness prosperity and progress are presaged. A child born on this day should be keen, clever and ambitious and may reach important position in employment on its own, but it may have need to control a tendency to wrath, contention and rashness lest it defeat its best interests.

Ford
IN THE past few months, the Ford Motor Company has introduced three new five-passenger bodies—the Town Sedan, De Luxe Sedan and Standard Sedan. To this distinguished group are now added the Convertible Sedan and Cabriolet.
These latest Ford bodies are of particular importance at this season not only because of their distinctive style and beauty, but because of the convertible feature. Each is really two cars in one.
On bright, clear days and moonlit nights, you may enjoy the exhilarating dash and freedom of an open car. When skies are overcast, or winter comes, the substantial attractive top gives you the snug comfort and protection of a closed car. The change is made quickly and easily.
See these new Ford cars at the showrooms of Ford dealers and make special note of their careful finish, rich upholstery and beautiful colors. You will take pride in their striking appearance and their satisfactory performance over many thousands of miles.

Seat cushions and backs are genuine leather, with arm rests for rear seat passengers. Driver's seat is adjustable. Side fender-well for spare tire is standard equipment. There is a choice of de luxe body colors. Most exposed bright metal parts are made of Rustless Steel. The slanting windshield is made of Triplex safety polished plate glass.

Speaking before a League of Nations gathering in Geneva, a delegate held low pay for women workers and divorce responsible for the moral decline, for which this may be said: it's just as good an explanation as any yet offered.

The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick says that "we are in danger of becoming a society of moral rubber stamps." Come to think of it, we have been letting a lot of self-constituted reformers use us a lot.

Paris reports that Germany is seeking a bigger navy. If the report be true and not a bit of French propaganda to work to German disadvantage, it's hardly the psychological time for Germany to press for a moratorium on her war debts.

According to Isabel Paterson, "success means linking yesterday, today and tomorrow." If Isabel means that success must be attained through consistent, consecutive effort, it's easy to conclude that her chart of the way to it is a mighty good one.

George Bernard Shaw divides political speakers into three classes—statesmen, orators and windbags. We noted that George was referred to recently as a windbag. Can it be that he has taken up spellbinding?

"Preparedness for war is a step toward war," Rev. Dr. James McLeod is quoted as saying. "The only safe nation is the nation that is respected and loved." As an evidence of good faith the reverend doctor should cite some nation which has survived as the result of respect and love of it by the outside world.

Carelessness Still Doesn't Pay.

Another horrible disaster has shocked the world out of its comfortable attitude of complacent assurance of protection against the ordinary possibilities of accidental death. More than 400 French people have been drowned in the Bay of Biscay, victims of their own foolhardiness and the carelessness of a steamship company in allowing a frail boat to leave shore in a storm it could not withstand.

The disaster ranks among the twenty worst in the list of maritime disasters since 1829. It is the more deplorable because it is in part, at least, the result of a foolhardy action common in marine disasters—the capsizing of the boat by the concentration of passengers' weight on one side. Although the frail craft might never have withstood the severe storm that caused panic among the passengers, it was the presence of too many people on the side away from the roll of the waves that caused it to capsize. The passengers, none of them familiar with boats, didn't think twice about what they were doing.

People learn slowly, and it seems sometimes they never learn that carelessness doesn't pay. But from the recent disaster in the Bay of Biscay, as from every disaster of great proportions, will come an urge to improve, to make safer the equipment and organization to which people trust their lives. It is a heavy price to pay for improvement, but it helps remove the stigma of utter futility from man's horrible experiences on the sea.

Back to the Boys.

Americans have demonstrated a remarkable capacity for worrying about the state of amateur football, particularly since the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching published its celebrated bulletin No. 23 back in October, 1929. Much of the worrying, oddly enough, has been done in the perturbed brains of those who never wore a football outfit, can see a football game probably but once a year.

Another Carnegie foundation report has been published to apprise armchair athletes, chronic worriers and kibitzers of current conditions in football. The report says football is getting back into better shape. It admits that the public is beginning to get tired of huge football spectacles, and that attendance fell off last season in twenty-five well-known schools. Undergraduates are beginning to tire of "big time" athletics, it reports, and takes a sharp slap at night football, and so on, pigeon-holing every aspect of the situation.

These things are evident, with or without a Carnegie foundation report. This, too, is evident: football developed along the lines that have caused so much worry to adept worriers because the people who played and enjoyed it wanted it to be that kind of a game. Now it is falling away from those lines because the boys who play it now see room for improvement. It is going back to the boys on the campus because the boys on the campus want it back—not because the Carnegie foundation issues reports or because any one's "ideals" are prevailing. The idealists in this instance, as in all instances, are following the crowd, not leading it. This would appear more intelligent if they were to stop talking, and let collegiate football take care of itself, which is what it will do eventually anyway.

A Strong Appeal.

The "opening shot" of President Hoover's reelection campaign, "fired" at the dinner of the Indiana Republican Editorial association, Monday night, is a ringing assertion of unshaken belief in the American system. As leader of the intrenched political party the President proclaims for things as they are, defending them stoutly against the insidious attack of those whose confidence in America's power to progress farther is wavering.

The American system, whose "impulsive force is in the character and spirit of our people," already has done a better job for the United States than any system ever did for any nation—and it will produce greater results yet if "we keep on giving the American people a chance," the President says. The nation needs no "plan" to bring it back to a satisfactory condition; it needs only to work the system that has brought it this far.

This is the preliminary sketch of the appeal to optimistic American faith that President Hoover will make the next year and a half. His political enemies will agree as to its strength; if there were not the faith in American institutions and people that Mr. Hoover calls on to enlist support for his candidacy, it would be a sorry situation for any candidate. It lies in no man's power to make a stronger appeal, as long as Americans remain predominantly optimistic and confident that in their own strength lies the means of deliverance from their troubles.

The depression will be the Republican issue in 1932. The United States, "economically more self-contained" than other nations, is especially fitted to come out of it the better for the hard experience—provided the right leadership and policies are supported. Despite certain malign influences and attitudes, American resources and the innate vigor of American people will prevail.

The Hoover administration now, as always, is wedded to an optimistic viewpoint a viewpoint from which solutions to present problems appear to be found in the orderly operation of the American system. Theoretical panaceas, economic patent medicines and legislative legerdemain, President Hoover believes, are "as accurate as the belief we can exorcise a Caribbean hurricane by statutory law." Foolish ideas and actions fostered by anxiety must be held in check, is his warning.

The administration is dedicated to uphold the following sound policies:

"Capital must be employed privately to aid in recovery of employment. It must not be diverted into the federal treasury unduly by taxes or loans for the purpose of creating employment by an exaggerated program of public works."

The federal government must retain control of its system of employment agencies.

The federal government must oppose anything which looks like a dole, or might become a dole. This includes unemployment insurance in the hands of the government. In private hands, however, unemployment insurance is to be encouraged.

There will be no session of congress to revise the tariff. A revising agency has been established and is operating. Tariff rates on agricultural products must be maintained at high levels.

The United States must be made prosperous first. "A prosperous United States is the beginning of a prosperous world," and the administration is dedicated to doing everything in its power to making the United States prosperous.

There are certain weaknesses which the administration believes should be eliminated. When it becomes possible to look at the depression objectively, the federal reserve system, the general banking system, the tax on capital net gains, and manipulation of stock and bond markets must be examined carefully, with an eye to correcting flaws revealed by the stress of the last two years. State and local taxation problems also must be studied to remove, if possible, unduly heavy burdens on farmers, home owners and all real property holders.

The "opening shot" of President Hoover's campaign has gone clean and far by any measurement. He has made his appeal to the dependable element of the citizen body—to Americans who believe their nation has sufficient strength to pull its burden by staying on the road and working in the same way it always has worked, with certain adjustments here and there to diminish inefficient wastes and equalize stress. Hocus-pocus has no supporters among this powerful group of the citizenry. The solidity of the administration's policies, therefore, appeals strongly to it. It is intelligent and fair to admit that everything possible is being done, and that frantic "cures" would be something worse than foolish.

John Galsworthy says that "we are living in an age of canned foods and insurance." Is John trying to hold out that the latter is necessitated by the former?

The "Untouchables."

Newspaper stories of eight young federal operatives with backbone enough to get evidence on the Capone mob in Chicago without being weakened by promises of bribes, threats of violence or bullying intimidation balance a good many puerile moving picture plots portraying the gangster in a heroic mold. The assertion of the government's strength in backing Capone to the wall has inspired new confidence in the American people. Children are reading news stories and hearing discussions that show the gangster and the hoodlum on the run, trying to cover up before they are felled by a superior force. They will profit from the new idea.

The "untouchables" is the name applied to the federal operatives, who earn $2,800 each a year, but would rather do their job than take the bribes offered them, or run away from danger. At a time when people suspect every enforcement officer of shady dealing until he is proved innocent, a story about them is the best publicity law enforcement could have. Many honest men are drawing salaries for enforcing law, but they have been kept in the background by sensational disclosures concerning their dishonest brethren.

"Capone is through," people are whispering. He has pleaded guilty to the government's charges against him. Up to now it has been the law-breakers who have been the "untouchables." Now it's the law-enforcers who are claiming the title. There's a great difference.

Editorial Opinion.

MAINTAIN THE WAGE SCALE.

It is easy to see why William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, should wax wroth over the effort of certain industries to break down the union wage scales. But regardless of his obvious interest in maintaining the gains scored by union labor in a period of plenty there is much to be said for his point, which is that the purchasing power of the worker is the cornerstone of prosperity in this country and that its reduction will simply prolong the present period of depression.

We have advanced in the United States beyond the age when profits alone could make industry hum. Profits are and probably always will be confined to the few who comprise too small a proportion of the buying public to support a regime of mass production. For better or worse we are committed to an industrial system which requires such a wide distribution of income as will enable the vast majority to respond to the salesman's lure.

That is not to say, of course, that profits are not essential, or that employers should be expected to pay wages that put their enterprises "in the red." It is merely to suggest that not only the employer himself, but society in general will benefit in the long run if so far as he is able he bolsters the wage level instead of yielding to the temptation to wreck it for his immediate gain. This is the philosophy behind the agreement reached by the industrial and labor leaders whom the President summoned in conference shortly after the stock market crash. The need to abide by it is stronger now than it was then.—New York Herald Tribune.

GROWING USE OF PROCESSED COAL.

According to a release from the department of commerce, "about one-fifth of the present annual output of bituminous coal in this country is now being subjected to chemical processing, and the quantity thus utilized is increasing steadily to meet the demand of a growing population and of an exceptional industrial expansion."

There is no question about the utilization of coal, in the long span of years, and a resumption of increased production over and above the less than 500,000,000 tons produced in 1930. The expanding output of the utilities, even though they do produce a kilowatt hour, with one-half the coal required ten years ago, will take up the march toward additional requirements. The ultimate is not in doubt. But, in the meantime, 305,000,000 tons of bituminous coal were displaced by gas and oil in 1927.

Coal is faced with fierce and devastating competition from other fuels. Gas and oil should enjoy no preference or benefit from the government that is not accorded coal. Gas and oil are encountering problems new to them, but old to coal. The immediate result will probably be the dumping of vast quantities of oil into competition with coal. Such action may force an even greater percentage of processed coal. But whatever the immediate result, there is no question but that coal will ultimately come into its own. — Mining Congress Journal.

THE VALUE OF JUNK.

Science has made of the once lowly junk dealer a business man of national importance and elevated the scrap iron trade to billion-dollar rank. The growth has been rapid since science took charge and installed order and certainty where there had been disorder and guesswork. Collecting junk is conservation of material.

In the light of things accomplished it was proper for the scrap iron trade to go on the air and broadcast its story to which was given the title, "The Romance of Scrap Iron." Listeners must have been surprised to hear that 30,000,000 tons of scrap iron and steel were handled in the steel trade last year, and its use conserved five times that tonnage in raw material, the use of which would have been required had the scrap not been available.

The development of the scrap iron business is a reminder that many successful lines of business have been started in a lowly and modest manner and have made fortunes through stopping the customary wastes of business. The scrap iron trade is built up of relatively small bits of metal, but when all the scrap in the nation is assembled it represents enormous wealth. Because the development of that trade means the prevention of waste it is to be welcomed.—Ohio State Journal.

Sunlight and the Child.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Abundant sunlight if of tremendous importance in the development of an infant. Like a flower, the child thrives and blossoms in its presence and withers in its absence.

Sunlight is absolutely necessary for the proper growth of a baby. Though food may be plentiful, without sunlight the body can not properly utilize the food.

It is a well-known fact that absence of sunlight or its substitute, cod liver oil, produces a condition in children known as rickets. This disease is characterized by poor development of the bones of the body, by flabby muscles of the body and marked undernourishment.

Years before the actual value of sunlight was understood, it was customary to feed cod liver oil to all children. Today, with our knowledge of the ultra-violet ray and the place of the vitamins, very little cod liver oil is necessary.

It is important to remember that sunlight is only beneficial when the rays actually reach the skin. Window glass and clothing keep out the beneficial rays. When tanning of the skin occurs, one can be assured that the beneficial rays of the sun have reached the body.

Sun baths may be given to an infant as early as the third or fourth week. The child should not be exposed too suddenly.

The first treatment may be for three minutes to the front of the body and three minutes to the back. The length of exposure may be gradually increased until the baby has a coat of tan. Then for a half hour or more he may frolic in the sun without any clothes.

I am often asked as to whether or not the sunlight is injurious to the eyes. As long as the rays do not strike the eyes directly there is no injury. When the child is very young, as in the first month of life, it is well to keep the face turned away from the sun while giving a sun bath.

Also, please remember that a sun bath may be given indoors. The child is placed in a crib near the open window. The crib is so placed that the sun rays fall upon the child.

How Moon Was Born.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

It has long been held that the moon was once a part of the earth. The mathematical theory on which this notion rested was developed by one of the greatest of modern mathematicians, Henri Poincare. This theory was applied by Sir George H. Darwin, son of Charles Darwin, in a classic piece of research which for long was believed to settle the question. The theory, briefly sketched, is as follows:

Originally the earth, very far back in time, was presumed to have a very high rotational velocity. The rotational speed imparted to the earth a spheroidal shape. Instead of slowing down, or even maintaining its speed, the earth was believed to have gradually accelerated its speed through many millions of years. In time it gradually changed its form, taking on a form something like an egg, and later a shape approximating that of a pear. Finally the smaller end of the pear took on a spheroidal shape, and the earth's mass resembled a dumbbell, composed of two balls stuck together, one being considerably larger than the other.

But the time this phase in the evolution of the earth's shape had been reached the speed of rotation was very high. The day was only three hours long, the rotational velocity being sixteen times that of a rifle bullet. By this time, owing to the effect of the rotation, cooling and contraction, the earth was covered with a coating or crust some thirty-five miles thick. Finally the strain became too great, and the smaller ball, some 5,000 cubic miles in volume, broke loose from the parent mass. Thus, according to Sir George H. Darwin, the moon was born.

It appears now that this fascinating story of cosmic evolution, as applied to earth and moon, must be abandoned. Nor can it be successfully maintained that the moon came out of the Pacific ocean just at the time the earth was beginning to have a solid crust. The abandonment of the reasonance theory is regretted by many astronomers, because they liked to think that the origin of the moon, the earth's companion, was unique.

Recent investigations have been made in the effort to discover whether, very far back in time, the earth and the moon were ever united in one body, and the conditions for their separation.

The sun might possibly have caused this separation by direct action, raising tides in the original mass. Under this assumption, this original mass must have been liquid. Sir James Jeans has demonstrated that, under no circumstances, could a gaseous body produce a large satellite. The original mass, then, must have had much the same density as that of the earth today. In that case the sun, in order to exert sufficient power on a body of the earth's density to draw huge filaments from it, must have actually grazed the original mass. A rotational period, in that case, would have been required of four hours, which is excessively high. Yet even that would not have been high enough to compel the original mass to break into two parts.

It is inconceivable that tides of great magnitude might have been raised in the original mass by solar influence. At present these tides are only a few inches in height. To cause rupture, tides at least as high as the earth's radius would have been required. Unfortunately, the inner structure of the earth renders this phenomenon impossible. There is a sharp boundary between the upper and the lower levels of the earth's mass. Calculation shows that were the earth originally liquid, the greatest height to which the tides could rise would be only one-twentieth enough to cause breakage.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Where Crawford Was Burned.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The spot where Colonel William Crawford was killed by the Indians is probably as definitely established as any historical place in Ohio that is not fixed with absolute certainty. It is about seven miles northwest of Upper Sandusky, near Carey and Crawfordsville and not far from the east bank of Tymochtee creek, where the bottom is low. The place is now included in Wyandot county.

It was long after the tragic incident of Indian warfare that this part of Ohio was settled, but the early settlers were pointed to the place time and again by Indians still living who were present at the execution of Colonel Crawford. William Walker, a chief of the Wyandots, who though not present at the execution, identified the place as having been indicated to him by Indians who were on the scene.

It was not the place of the capture of the colonel. That was some distance away, on what is now called Broken Sword creek, so called because a broken sword was found in it, supposed to have been that of Colonel Crawford, who, when he saw that capture was inevitable, broke his weapon and threw it into the creek.

To this place it was that Colonel Crawford was taken after his capture, to be burned as the chief feature of a celebration of the Indian victory over his army. About 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Tuesday, June 11, 1782, the frightful torture and accompanying orgies began. The victim, tied to a pole set firmly in the ground, was surrounded by a fire by which he was slowly burned. Dr. Knight, his surgeon, who was also captured and was to have suffered a like fate, but escaped, was forced to witness the burning of his chief and described the savage fiendishness of the Indians in planning to make his death as slow and painful as possible. Because of Colonel Crawford's high standing with government authorities and the awful tragedy of his death, what took place here is an outstanding event in the Indian history of Ohio. The Pioneer Society of Wyandot County erected a modest monument, marking the spot, on August 3, 1877.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, June 17—Billy, the eight-year-old Boston, and Rainbow, the year-old Sealyham, have suddenly formed a strange canine comradeship. In the beginning, Rainbow was looked upon by Billy as a fresh ball of fluff and if, in his friskiness, he came too close received a warning growl.

The puppy sensed the right of priority and kept at respectful distance. Yet it was obvious he wanted to be friends. He had come in a crate from a large kennel of puppies and grown dogs on a big estate in California to live in the cramped isolation of a New York apartment.

He had to endure the leash and other restrictions imposed by the city. The Boston completely ignored him and the puppy in his yearning for dog relationship would make coy advances at his own mirrored reflection, whining joyously and rolling in ecstasy.

The Boston is city bred, being "For Sale" in a Fifth avenue dog shop window a few weeks after he was whelped. The affliction of congenital deafness has bestowed all the characteristics of human deafness—a sensitiveness and aloofness.

His friends are staunch but limited. Of all the dogs I ever saw he is the most complete aristocrat. Rainbow is the lovable clown, lumbering about in awkward falls and always up to some harmless hoop-la. Bathed one hour, the next he suggests a chimney sweep after a tough day at the office.

After a month or so it was noticed Billy's total indifference broke down a trifle. When the button-eyed Sealyham would streak through the house hell-for-leather for no particular reason save the sheer joy of living, Billy would condescend to look at him quizzically. But that was all.

Lately on evening walks, however, if Billy was ahead of the Sealyham he would constantly stop, look back and wait. A week ago a mongrel attacked the puppy. Billy tore out of grasp, caught the attacker by the throat and held on with bull dog tenacity. Returning in the car, the Sealyham slept with his head pillowed against Billy's hip.

And Billy not only did not seem annoyed, he seemed quite set up.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, June 17—Most of the women of congress still are a bit shy when it comes to actual participation in debates with their men colleagues on the floor.

Apparently the adage about being seen and not heard has a strong appeal with them. But perhaps the real reason for their shyness lies in the fact that unusual vocal powers are required of any one who joins in the wrangling that goes on when legislation is being discussed.

The house is a big and noisy place. Unlike the British parliament, there is nothing like a hall or round table discussion.

It is impossible for one to employ a conversational tone if he desires to be heard. Those who do merely carry on informal chats with the reporters—their colleagues hear nothing nor do the galleries.

Once the house tried out a loud speaker system, but it was never satisfactory.

If the women continue to widen their sphere of political activity and more and more win seats in congress, something must be done. Perhaps a cue will be taken from the British and earphones furnished people who sit in the galleries.

• • •

But some of the women do attempt to edge in on the argument at times. Mrs. Norton, of New Jersey, and Mrs. Rogers, of Massachusetts, frequently speak out. Members of the World war veterans' committee, they are of different political faiths.

When legislation affecting the veterans comes up, these two members actively enter into the discussion on the floor. Sometimes they have it to themselves and scrap it out. Both have voices that are rather strong and can make themselves heard.

Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, is another heard from occasionally. Possessed of a rich and melodious voice and a singer of note, she has little difficulty in making herself heard.

But the others prefer silence most of the time. Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, of California, a three-termer, rarely is heard. Mrs. Pearl Oldfield, of Arkansas, made no speeches. Ruth Baker Pratt, of New York, is content to listen as a rule, as was Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Illinois.

• • •

Incidentally, the women of the house probably will have to go a long time before one of them gets within shooting distance of a committee chairmanship. Now they are not even represented on any of the big three committees—ways and means, rules and appropriations.

Not even the veteran Mrs. Kahn has made much progress. She holds down only the military committee place which her husband, the late Julius Kahn, had. But she still is far down the seniority list.

If the Democrats organise the seventy-second congress, Mrs. Norton would hold place, No. 1 on the District of Columbia committee.

25 MINISTERS AT CAMP MEETING HERE

Pastors Take Part in Evangelical Services at Garfield Park.

Twenty-five ministers representing five denominations attended the Evangelical district camp meeting at Garfield park last night. Rev. L. E. Hill of Bucyrus led in the opening prayer Dr. Joseph Owen preached from Psalm 51:13. He gave three reasons for men seeking God.

"First, that they must be saved. Second, that they may be used of God in bringing others to Christ. Third, that they may glorify God." He outlined the four steps given in the Psalm which prepare one for soul winning. They follow: "First, 'Have mercy on me and blot out my transgressions'; second, 'Create in me a clean heart'; third, 'Take not thy Holy Spirit from me', fourth, 'Restore unto me the joy of my salvation'."

"The church must cease burning incense to learning and quit worshipping the past and be filled with the spirit and the earnestness of the fathers of the church," he said "The world has nothing to offer that can satisfy the deep needs of the human soul."

Prayers by Rev. H. L. Zachman of Cleveland, Rev. S. F Porter of Emmanuel church, Rev. F. W. Fox of First Pilgrim Holiness church and Rev. H. H. Maxwell of Grace Evangelical church closed the service. Dr Owen will speak tonight at 7 30. Services will be held Thursday afternoon

CHAPTER 15
No Time To Lose

BOTH Martin and his daughter, Ann, remained speechless, while Tony, as if he were speaking lines in a play, continued:

"You have said enough, Martin [illegible]. Please confine your criticism to me. I have become so accustomed to the yapping of our Orchard Hill poodles, and the squalling of our village cats that I am no longer disturbed by your [illegible]."

Martin, cowed by the dignity of the old actor, but stung by his words, could only mumble, "Huh! You think you're somebody, don't you?"

"I know I am," returned the old actor proudly. "And I advise you, sir, to discuss things which come within the limits of your intelligence."

At this Ann asserted herself. "Stop it, both of you! I won't have you quarreling like this in my house. You two have been friends since your school days! For two pins, I'd give you both a spanking!"

Old Tony relaxed from his theatrical pose and Martin turned a way mumbling.

Ann continued: "You have no right to talk to Father Tony like this, Pa—you know how he loves Pierre."

Martin faced his daughter. "We all are fond of Pierre, but you don't seem to appreciate the situation. Your husband, Bruce Carey, is a natural born financier, who'll be on Wall Street some day, if you'll encourage him a little. Right now he's too big for the Orchard Hill First National. And Pierre a soda jerk in the Owl Drug Store! That's the limit of his business ability. You can see how far he'll get with the money his mother left him. Pierre'll just throw 'his money away on this New York school learnin' to act.

"If Pierre would let Bruce invest his money in this Red Butte, Nevada mine, Bruce would make a fortune for Pierre, himself and you.

"You're just like your mother—always raising a howl whenever I've had a chance to get in on the ground floor of a good thing and make real money, and look at me now—stuck in a dinky bank, bookkeeping for 40 years! I've got to go back down to the bank and work tonight because my balance is off 39 cents. That's the sort of a financier I am!"

His voice and manner were so hopeless that both Ann and Old Tony were touched.

"Never you mind, Pa," the young woman said comfortably. "You have not made a million dollars, but you have been a wonderful father and there's not a man in Orchard Hill that's more highly thought of inside the church and out."

"That's true, Martin," said Old Tony in the same vein, "and you have raised a daughter that is worth more than all the gold ever mined. I'm sorry that I spoke so unkindly."

"That's all right, Tony," returned Martin heartily. "I guess I was a little brash myself. You see, this Nevada gold mine proposition is a chance in a lifetime for Bruce. I don't want Ann's husband to turn out the same kind of a failure I am."

"Who is this Nevada promoter who is offering Bruce such a golden opportunity?" asked Old Tony.

"He's a mining man in Red Butte," Martin answered. "Bruce knows him. If the proposition wasn't all right Bruce would be the last man in the world to want to go into it."

Ann spoke thoughtfully. "I tremble sometimes to think what Bruce's determination to be rich may lead him into."

"You don't need to worry," Martin returned. "Bruce is too smart to be anything but honest. He'll be one of our leading financiers some day—you'll see."

"Pierre is a great artist soul, Martin," Old Tony said earnestly. "The ability to make money is not the only mark of worth."

"I know money ain't everything," returned Martin. "But it wouldn't hurt Pierre's soul none if he was to help Bruce to get a start. 'Tain't like we was wantin' him to give his money to Bruce. If you was a dutiful wife, Ann, you'd persuade Pierre to help Bruce."

"Now, Pa—" said Ann, interrupted as the front door closed and Bruce Carey appeared in the archway leading to the hall. It was evident from his manner that he had important business on his mind.

Before entering the room he hung his coat and hat over the stair rail, calling out as he did so: "Supper about ready, Ann? I've got to go to Camden tonight—7:40 train. Get a move on, will you?"

Ann sprang to her feet. "My goodness, I forgot about supper! But you have plenty of time. There's no need for such a rush."

"Much you know about it," Bruce retorted. "Isn't Pierre leaving on the 6:15 train in the morning?"

"Yes," said Ann.

"Yes," returned Bruce, "and I can't get a train back here before eight o'clock. If I talk business with Pierre I've got to do it tonight—see?"

Ann went into the kitchen and began preparing supper.

Old Tony said, "How do you do, Bruce?"

Bruce answered with a cool stare and a gruff, "Hello," then, pointedly turning his back, he said to Martin: "Our old boss would pick this evening to send me to Camden with some papers for Fuller, the president of the Farmers' National."

"It's business that has to be in Fuller's hands when the bank opens tomorrow, I suppose," returned Martin.

"Yeah," Bruce replied, "but outside of banking hours my time's supposed to be my own. The First National doesn't own me body and soul like it does you."

Suddenly Bruce turned to Ann and demanded imperiously:

"Where is Pierre? I'm going to talk business with that would-be actor."

To Be Continued.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

THIS would have been the middle day in the week if there was any school, but a fella don't notice much which day is which day when it is vacation. I let Jubilee down by the rope while he held onto it, and then I pulled it up and hid it out in the attic, which I get to by a little door in the side of my room, and then I went down and got the pail and went out to milk the cows which my ant calls bovines and my grandfather calls critters, only that isn't what he called them when they ran over him once getting out of the barn.

When I had fed my face and the bunch were all there Younise had a big paper bag with sandwiches in it, and she said we would all go and eat the sandwiches and pick the bag full of berries after we had got the cows in the pasture; so we went out past the pasture and took the cut-off road over toardst Stranhan's where we knew there were lots of strawberries, and there is an old barn over by the bend of the river where a house got burnt down one time, and we went over there and et the sandwiches, and then we went in the barn to see if we could find anything, and there was a lot of old hay in it and I was going to jump on the hay so I clumb up a ladder and walked along a beam and just as I was going to jump I noticed something up in the coopalo and I hollered to Banty to bring the bag up, and he put it inside of his shirt and clumb up.

The coopalo was full of bats that had came in through the slatted sides and they were all hanging heads downwards asleep, and we gathered a bag full of them, then I took the bag and jumped down and bounced almost as high as the barn when I hit the hay, and we all went home to my house and my mother called me in to wash Annabelle Lee's face and get her ready for dinner, so I laid the bag of bats on the kitchen table, and without noticing it my ant put the dishpan on the table and emptied the bag into it, and the air was full of bats, and screams from my mother and ant.

My ant got the broom and my mother the mop and they tried to drive the bats out doors, but bats are good dodgers; and my grandfather put down his paper and came out to see what it was about, and got hit in the [illegible] with the mop, and I would have had a swell time if I hadn't known I would be blamed for it all. After a while my [illegible] helped them [illegible] doors where I had [illegible] with Annabelle Lee, [illegible] told me what they [illegible] and I was afraid [illegible] happen when my [illegible] But he was [illegible]

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Stumped for Ideas to Carry On.

FOR fully five minutes I pondered—and worried—over the tangled skein into which the idyll of Noel and Mary appeared to have snarled. Then, as the clock in the hall chimed the half hour, I realized that I had only that length of time before dinner in which to read over the first two acts of my play, and resolutely putting everything else out of my mind, I took up the manuscript so rumpled by Dicky's impetuous embrace of me, and buried myself in it.

I have trained myself in concentration, and I am a rapid reader, so that when the dinner gong sounded its first warning—Katie always gives us ten minutes leeway before she serves dinner — I had completed the reading, and laid the loosely bound pages down with the feeling of having finished a race. Indeed, as Lillian had said, my "uncanny memory" — joint product of some obscure brain kink and my mother's careful training — had enabled me to anticipate every word of the dialogue and stage directions, and I knew that with the manuscript turned downwards, I could recite it faultlessly.

But, I asked myself drearily, what good did that do me when the only effect of reading the two acts seemed to be the actual tying up of my brain cells into knots. I had the general plan for the third act before me, but any ideas for dialogue or action had withdrawn sulkily into some far closet, and I greatly doubted my ability to get them out again.

A clatter of feet in the hall, accompanied by an audible "Sh—sh," from Lillian told me that the youthful fish-cleaners must have hurried through their dressing with break-neck speed. The noise ceased abruptly, and though I could not hear them, I knew that they had gone tip-toeing down the stairs.

Relieved for Mess

Mary and Marion were the next victims of the hushing, and I realized that Lillian must be doing sentry go in the hall. I stood up abruptly, and walking to the door, leading to the upper hall, I opened it, seeing Lillian bending over the banister, and shaking a warning finger at the girls as they ran down the stairs.

"Time to change the Horse Guards," I said, and she whirled to look at me with an appraising eye.

"Relieve them for mess, you mean," she retorted. And then, with a second keen glance at my troubled eyes she asked:

"What's the matter? Isn't it jelling?"

"It isn't even simmering," I said despondently. "I haven't an idea—"

"In the well-known system," Lillian finished for me with an impish grin. "Well, it doesn't need to have, so it doesn't. It shall go out to dinner, and absorb bottle-fish—not too many, but enough to stoke up the little machinery for the night."

I smiled at her, subtly cheered, as always by her purposeful foolery. My brain was as blank as ever, but my discouragement had retreated, slowly, and showing its teeth as it went, but surely, before the cheery optimism of Lillian's voice.

"Let me drop a hint into your shell-like ear," she said, slipping her arm through mine. "Park that manuscript for the next hour or two, away from your mind as well as your hands. Eat, drink, listen to the fish stories and watch William 'Baxter' Harrison 'being Seventeen.' By the time we foregather after dinner your brain cells will be as pepped up and ready for action as a freshly overhauled motor..."

"I can be 'pushed just so far' myself," I retorted, "and if you refer to me again as a temperamental genius, I'll tear up this manuscript and make you eat the pieces."

"Thereby proving your title to the appellation." She laughed comfortably, then her voice sobered.

"I'll admit I've been trying to annex the Angora," she said. "If I can get you peeved enough, so you'll forget being scared to death over this hayride, we'll be able not only to pull the chestnuts out of the fire but to serve 'em up with salt. Come on down with me now, and do the chatelaine-of-the-castle-presiding-over-the-evening-meal stunt."

She drew me with her down the stairs, and into the living room where Hank and Bill, with Marion and Mary were gazing forlornly at the phonograph. But when I appeared in the doorway, Hank called out "Whoopee Let 'er go, Kid!" and sprang for the machine. But Bill stopped him with a quick gesture, and turned to me.

"Is it all right, Aunt Madge?"

"Perfectly all right, Bill," I said, and he rushed over to Marion and swept her into the dance with such a beatific expression on his face that I did not need Lillian's low "What did I tell you," to remind me irrepressibly of Tarkington's immortal William Sylvanus Baxter.

And then, more temperamental than any prima donna, Katy came into the living room and glared at the dancers.

"Ef you tink I going to try beat dot phonograph mit my dinner gong," she said, "you got nudder tink comin'. Dose bottle feeshes are just climbing out of de pan waitin' to be swallowed. And you better not waste any time gettin' in dinin' room."

Council Overrides Mayor's Veto; To Buy Airport Sit

2-Year Fight Ends; Land Will Cost City $15,000

$40,000 Bond Issue Approved by Voters for Purpose; Schuler Based Opposition to Purchase on Price for Land and Need To Reduce Bucyrus Taxes.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, June 17—After two years of vigorous opposition on the part of Mayor Arthur Schuler, Bucyrus will have a municipally owned airport. Overriding two vetoes by the mayor, the city council in regular session Tuesday night voted unanimously in favor of proceeding with legislation authorizing the service director to purchase from Peter Metzger a 64-acre tract of land on Winchester road for a landing field.

Action of the council in obtaining an airport followed the approval of a $40,000 bond issue in the 1929 election, only $15,000 of which will be used in the purchase of the site.

Upon a motion made by Councilman George Ryan that council reconsider the passage of the ordinance Tuesday night, Mayor Schuler interposed and asked that the money to be used for the site be kept intact for the care of needy this winter which he predicted would be in greater numbers than last winter.

Mayor Schuler in his message to council in which his reasons for vetoing the measure were listed said he believed the price asked for the land was too high and that the city must retrench in tax expenditures in view of decline in general value of real estate on the tax duplicate

"The fact that you were authorized by a majority vote of the electors of this city to purchase an airport does not warrant wasteful and extravagant expenditure of public funds," Schuler said.

He pointed out that the land has been reduced in value on the tax duplicate from $5,370 to $3,970 by appraisers which is approximately $63 an acre The mayor challenged the propriety of paying $155 an acre, or nearly two and a half times its appraised value.

"I fear that it (the airport) will be a continual bill of expense, with none but a very few deriving any benefit," the mayor said in urging council to reduce taxes by cutting expenses

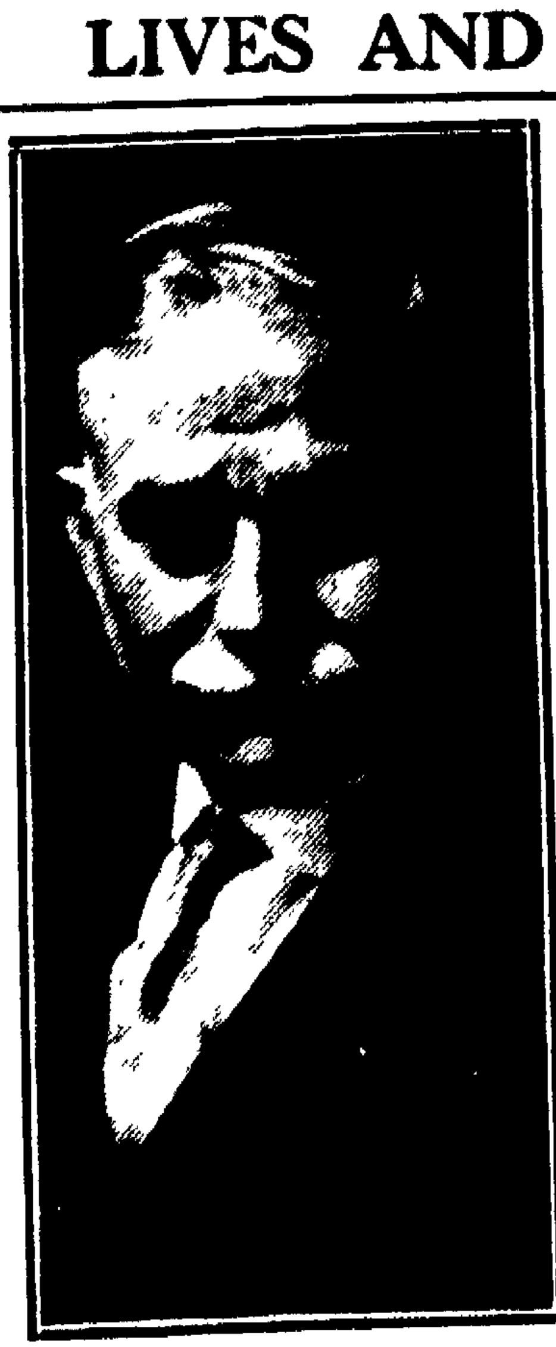
VETERANS HEAD FORCES PROTECTING LIVES AND PROPERTY AT BUCYRUS



WILLIAM F. MADER

PHILIP TRAUTMAN

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, June 16—Two veterans guide the forces which daily protect the lives and property of Bucyrus residents. Chief of Police Philip Trautman, 74, and Fire Chief William F. Mader, 65, have served in their departments for a combined total of 77 years.

Mader was appointed chief of the fire department by Mayor C. D. Ward 43 years ago. He has missed but 30 fires since his appointment June 30, 1888, most of these occurring while he was on a vacation in California.

• • •

AT the start of his career, the fire department was located in what is now the mayor's office and consisted of the hose reel, hook and ladder and steam pumper companies. All these units which made up the modern small city fire departments in those days were pulled to each fire by hand. Later horse-drawn equipment was added.

The present fire department was constructed in 1905 and automatic fire alarm boxes have replaced the old bell which called the members of the old department together for fires. The department today is made up of six regular men and 12 minute men who answer all fires. Motorized equipment has replaced the hand and horse-drawn apparatus.

Trautman's period of public service is nearly as long as that of Mader. He was one of the first firemen to be appointed by Chief Mader.

• • •

THERE was no traffic problem when Trautman first became a member of the police force in 1897. He served as patrolman until 1902 when he was elected marshal. In 1903 he was appointed chief of police by Mayor H E Valentine.

The first police force appointed by Trautman included Louis Schuler, George Schurr, James Ghist, "Shorty" Sharp, Mat Coulter, John Kennedy and James Ferree. Ghist still remains on the force.

Eight automobiles were owned in Bucyrus when Trautman became chief. They were considered a curiousity and a menace because horses were frightened at their appearance on the streets.

Trautman has not missed a single state convention of police chiefs.

WASHINGTON SPOTS BROWNS 9-RUN LEAD BUT RALLIES TO WIN

Klein Clouts 17th Homer but Phils Lose, 2-1; Giants Drop Reds.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

In the round of intersectional games which is coming to a close in the big leagues, the clubs of the two home sectors have far outshone the visitors. With a few games left for today before the scenes of activity shift, the eastern clubs of the American league have turned in 36 victories against 15 for the western invaders. In the National league, the visiting teams from the east have won 23 games since the series started June 1, while the west has recorded 32 triumphs.

The Washington Senators had a narrow escape yesterday when they handed the St. Louis Browns a nine run lead in the first three innings, but they slowly cut down the margin and finally won out 11 to 10 in a ninth inning rally as Dave Harris tripled with the bases full and then scored on an error.

Rain washed away the remainder of the American league games yesterday.

The league leading St. Louis Cardinals took first place for the National league's east-west round yesterday by beating the Phillies 2-1 in a battle that combined fine pitching with home runs. Up to the ninth inning of the duel between Benge and Grimes, the Phils held a 1-0 lead on Chuck Klein's seventeenth homer. Then George Watkins and Frank Frisch hit for the circuit to win. The victory gave the Cards a record of 10 games won and five lost in their stand against the east.

Right behind them came the Cincinnati Reds with a nine games won and five lost despite a 6-1 beating at the hands of the New York Giants yesterday.

Chicago's Cubs fill the next notch with nine victories and six defeats after an uphill battle to beat the Boston Braves 8 to 7 yesterday.

New York and Boston rained out for the last two days, meet in a final game today.

MILWAUKEE GAINS IN ASSOCIATION BATTLE

Defeats Toledo 7-2; Columbus Takes Pasting from Blues, 14-4.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 17—The collective blood pressure of the first three teams in the American Association standing was just a little higher today for the race was just a little closer.

St. Paul still was in the lead, with Louisville right behind, but Milwaukee was so close that a victory for the Brewers today and defeats for the Saints and Colonels would put Milwaukee in a tie for first place.

Len Koenecke, Indianapolis outfielder, slammed a homer into the right field stands to give the Indians a lead they never gave up, and St. Paul took an 8 to 4 beating.

Minneapolis defeated Louisville, 10 to 6, and dragged the Colonels down to within a half game of Milwaukee which defeated Toledo, 7 to 2.

Max Thomas gave Kansas City six-hit pitching and the rest of the Blues batted two Columbus hurlers viciously, for a 14 to 4 victory. Thomas was in trouble in the first and ninth inning, but he had enough lead to stand for almost anything after the third when the Blues scored seven times.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

WITH one game remaining for play in the first round of the No. 2 Sunday school league and two remaining in the other three city circuits it is evident that competition this season is much evener than it has been for the last several years. Of 32 teams composing the lineups of the four leagues only four retain unbeaten slates and at least one of these perfect records is certain to be wiped out before this week draws to a close.

Not a single team remains in the No. 2 S. S. circuit that has not been beaten. The Presbyterians have lost only one but have played one less than most of the teams of the circuit.

In the No. 1 Sunday school league Calvary is the only team boasting an unblemished record. So far this year Calvary has had fairly easy sledding and should go on to a league championship, although it is improbable that the league leaders will get through without at least one blemish on the won and lost record.

* * *

The C., D. & M. Electricians in the Industrial league are the only undefeated team and have a better than even chance of going through at least the first round without taking any on the chin. It will be one of the present day miracles though if the team gets through the season without taking at least a pair of beatings.

The Kappas and Prospect Firemen are flying the unbeaten banners of the Commercial circuit. One of these will lower the perfect standard after Friday of this week for they are booked to oppose each other in a Friday battle.

* * *

It's a bad year for unbeaten records. Right now there are only two teams that have more than about one in a million chances of going through the year unbeaten. And it wouldn't be surprising to see these two lose at least one game.

* * *

It looks like Cleveland and Columbus baseball clubs are in just about the same predicament. Both teams have a whole array of sluggers in the lineups but neither has very many pitchers worthy of the name.

A week ago Columbus was battling for the top in the American Association pennant race and now it is fighting to keep from being shoved far down the ladder. Cleveland has not been in the fight for the lead for some time but unless something happens to pep up the hurling staff soon the Tribe will not even be in the first division. Given a first class pitching staff Managers Liebold and Peckinpaugh would more than likely pilot their respective teams into a position close to or even at the top. But that won't be this season.

DAYTON TOURNEY TO RELEASE COMMENTS ON "BALLOON" BALL

Leading Players of Game Entertained in Western Open Tournament.

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Sports Editor
By The Associated Press

DAYTON, O., June 17—The thirty-second western open golf championship battle which opens over the Miami Valley golf club course tomorrow promises to release a new flood or oratory over the merits or demerits of the new balloon ball.

Most of the leading par reducers of the nation are entered in the event, the first major golf tournament in the north since the advent of the larger pellet, and their protests or praises are expected to be far more numerous than their alibis for not breaking par.

Miami Valley will provide an excellent test for the new ball. It stretches over a level expanse of 6,655 yards and has a reputation as one of the windiest courses in the country. It is an ideal course for putting and is trapped in 74 spots to catch any misjudged shots. Iron shots, and good ones, are necessary on virtually every hole in on the course.

As most of the entries in the championship fight checked in today, a new threat to the crown now worn by Gene Sarazen strode forth in Mortie Dutra, of Long Beach, Calif. Dutra proceeded in two practice rounds turned in a 69, two under par, Monday, and 70 strokes yesterday.

Olin Dutra, Martie's brother, shot a 72 as did Emmet French of Youngstown, while Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., Los Angeles Open champion, shot 72s. The competitive course record is 69.

Tommy Armour, Walter Hagen, Sarazen and some more of the big shots expected to get acquainted with the course today.

STILL TRYING

After two starts, one of seven and one of nine innings duration, the First Reformed and Central Christian No. 1 recreation baseball teams will make another effort today to decide which team is the better outfit. The other two games both resulted in tie scores, the first 2-2 and the second 1-1.

The sceneof the game today has been shifted from the Steam Shovel diamond to Lincoln park. It will be the only league contest played today. It starts at 6:15 p. m.

CLOUTS 17TH

Charles (Chuck) Klein, outfielder of the Philadelphia National league entry is threatening to become the 1931 home run king as he almost daily propels the horsehide sphere out of the park for at least one homer. Klein smacked his seventeenth yesterday in a game with the St. Louis Cardinals. He is four ahead of his closest competitor, Foxx of the Athletics, who has 13. And where is the Babe? It looks like he is another of the "has beens" in this business of clouting home runs. And Hack Wilson, where is he?

British Ryder Cup Team Doesn't Like New Ball

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 17—Members of the British Ryder cup golf team don't think much of the bigger and lighter American ball but they hope for the best when they meet this country's leading professionals in the cup matches at Columbus, O., June 26 and 27.

The team of 10 arrived on the Aquitania last night and promptly was asked its collective opinion of the American ball which will be used at Columbus.

"We have the handicap of wind in playing in England," said George Duncan, British veteran, who acted as temporary spokesman of the party. I myself do not believe the new ball will last more than another year."

NAVY CREW SPRINGS SURPRISE AND WINS COLLEGIATE REGATTA

Favored Cornell Eight Finishes Second to Brilliant Middie Oarsmen.

BY ALAN GOULD
By The Associated Press

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 17—Unexpectedly, the navy ruled the intercollegiate seas yesterday.

When nine eight-oared crews started in heavy rain in the climax race of the intercollegiate regatta last evening, with an ebb tide beginning to run fast, the naval academy's stalwarts were just a boatload of strong backed young men, going nowhere in particular so far as experts were concerned.

Less than 20 minutes later, this same Navy boatload was acclaimed the victory in the classic four mile varsity race down the Hudson as it handed a clean-cut beating to the heavily-favored Cornell crew, defending champion.

Navy followed Washington's fast pace for the first three miles and then stepped up the beat going into the last mile sufficiently fast to assume the lead from the fading Huskies and then had the stuff to stand Cornell's desperate closing bid.

The Navy crew staged one of the most astonishing come-backs in rowing history after a disastrous early season in which they had taken lickings from Columbia, Harvard and Syracuse.

Whereth it was just the Navy's day in sudden return to form or the result of a switch that sent Ramon P. Hunter, of Sherman, Texas, to the stroking position for the first time in his competitive career, these midshipmen rowed like champions. Their time was 18 minutes, 54 1-5 seconds, for the four mile route. The Midshipmen stood off Cornell's champions by a length and a half and Washington by two lengths.

California was fourth, Syracuse was fifth, Pennsylvania sixth and Columbia, one of the big favorites, a poor seventh.

COON CHASE SUNDAY

The Heart of Ohio Coon Hunters' association will sponsor a coon chase starting from the Marion county fair grounds Sunday, June 21 at 10 a. m. The purse for the chase will total $50. The winner of first place will receive $25, second $15 and third $10. The first tree dog and first line dog in each heat will receive one dollar. Ladies and children will be admitted to the chase free.

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

Watermelons made their appearance on the local markets yesterday. The fruit comes from Florida and was selling today at from 90 cents to $1.25. Only a small supply was being carried in anticipation of the limited demand.

Strawberries for canning were being featured by dealers today. Home grown berries are now coming on the market in lager quantities and dealers were asking from 15 to 23 cents a quart today. The latter part of the week will find the season in full swing and dealers are predicting a large crop.

A few blackberries were being carried by dealers today that were selling at 20 cents a quart. Home grown blackberries have not made their appearance. Prospects for a large crop are good according to growers.

Vegetables of all kinds were plentiful today with prices unchanged from yesterday, with the exception of celery which was selling at 20 and 25 cents a bunch, the highest point in several years. The between season period is given by dealers as the reason for the advance.

Butter was two cents lower today, prices from 30 to 34 cents being asked. That there will be no advance the remainder of the week, was said by dealers this morning.

HEAT WAVE BOOSTS WHEAT

Increased Crop Damage from Drouth Causes Upturn in Values.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 17—Scorching temperatures, 100 and above reported in Canadian and American spring wheat territory led to early higher prices for grains today. Much increased crop damage in drouth regions was expected to result from the hot wave. Opening unchanged to ⅛ cent off, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅜ higher and subsequently showed a general advance.

Accompanying reports of excessive heat and continued drouth northwest were advices that the Canadian wheat crop was rapidly shaping toward a lower yield per acre than any ever raised in the past. A Chicago expert telegraphed from Saskatoon, that from region Saskatoon wheat was almost a total failure for the first 50 miles and the remainder of the distance very poor, being stunted and thin with big brown patches showing in the fields. Another crop authority wired Rosetown, Sask., that many fields were blown out by high winds.

On the other hand, harvesting of winter wheat in this country's chief producing state, Kansas, was reported to have begun ahead of schedule with yields above average. Salina, Kansas dispatches said cutting had commenced in that district, with returns showing 20 bushels an acre, compared with the official Kansas forecast of about 14 bushels. Corn and oats rose with wheat and as a result of scarcity of offerings of corn future deliveries.

Provisions reflected hog market upturns.

Dedication Sidelights

PERSONS craning their necks to see the visiting dignitaries yesterday as they were driven to the station were sure of the identity of one man. The famous "Dawes pipe" made the former vice president Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to England, a marked man. All along the route, exclamations of "There's Dawes and his pipe" followed the passing of his car.

The love of Marion's famous son for dogs was brought to mind yesterday afternoon at the dedication of his tomb. On the outskirts of the crowd, wandering about as if his last friend had deserted him was a mongrel hound. Persons who attended the funeral of the late President recalled that a stray dog trotted beside the funeral procession in its long march to the vault in Marion cemetery, and after the services, quietly disappeared.

Among the guests in the city for the dedication exercises were Thomas A. Jenkins of Ironton, who is serving his fourth term as congressman from the Tenth district, John L. The band has been organized several years and a number of the boys have been members several years.

Those wise enough to go to Union station last night before the train bearing former President and Mrs. Coolidge pulled out, were fortunate in being received by the famous couple. Mr. Coolidge acknowledged introductions. Mrs. Coolidge, one of the most gracious and charming of the first ladies to grace the White House, stopped to speak to children and chatted with those not too awed until the train left on its return trip to their New England home.

Mingling with the roar of the 'planes overhead was the whirr of newsreel and privately owned moving pictures cameras as President and Mrs. Hoover walked from their auto to the speakers stand at the Harding memorial grounds yesterday. A barrage of amateur and professional photographers trained their cameras on the speaker's platform for pictures of the distinguished guests. One of the newsreel photographers stood on top of an ambulance sent to the spot for service to those who were taken ill, to get a better view of the presidential party.

Officials of the association have expressed their pleasure over the efficient handling of the affair to Hoke Donithen, chairman, who is preparing letters of gratitude to Governor White and his staff particularly to Adjutant Henderson whose cooperation in providing troops for police and traffic work helped prevent accidents.

President Hoover left Marion for Columbus immediately after the program to review a G. A. R. parade and for a reception last night. Former President Coolidge visited the Harding home and museum on Mt. Vernon avenue yesterday morning before the luncheon, and drove to other points of interest around the city. He returned to Hotel Harding immediately after the dedicatory program and remained there until train time. Both he and Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, president of the memorial association, left on the eastbound Southwestern Limited for their homes in the east.

Hotels Filled

Facilities for accommodating visitors were taxed to the utmost. Three uptown restaurants served 5,000 persons during the noon hour, and the four largest hotels were filled. Hundreds of others were housed in private homes.

Souvenir and concession stands operated by the memorial association did a large volume of business. The proceeds will be turned over to the fund for the Harding home and museum. Six hundred persons visited the museum yesterday.

The crowd left Marion quickly after the dedication, many thousands following the President and his party to Columbus.

Red Cross Makes Plea for Undernourished Children

Unless some kindly disposed person or organization comes to the rescue, hundreds of Marion babies and small children are soon to be deprived of their daily portion of milk, according to members of the local Red Cross.

A year ago, through the kindness of a number of individuals and organizations, a fund was created from which each of the organizations dealing with child welfare work obtained money with which to provide milk for the undernourished children and babies. This fund according to Miss Margaret L. Dowd, secretary of the Red Cross is now exhausted and unless help is obtained from some source, a situation more serious than is generally realized, will follow.

Plans are now being made, Miss Dowd said, to cut from the list all children over one year of age who are now receiving milk from the fund and unless help is received shortly, it will be necessary to discontinue the work entirely.

Miss Dowd pointed out as one of the most serious phases of the problem, the fact that many of the children who are now provided with milk, are constantly threatened with tuberculosis and their only hope in fighting the disease is plenty of nourishing food of which milk is a vital part. The situation with babies under one year of age is still more serious since they are unable to eat the food given the older children.

One quart of milk daily, sufficient for each child, costs $3 a month. Miss Dowd asked that anyone interested in extending help, get in touch with the Red Cross office.

In 1930 it was 3.54 per cent. Earnings of the class one roads since 1921 were said to have dropped about $2,575,000,000 below the rate of return on capital authorized by law.

Credit Impaired

The brief emphasized the danger of an impaired credit position and its effect on railroad securities, especially bonds. If the roads were getting a fair return, it said, "railway securities which are now appropriate for insurance, savings banks and trust investments would continue to maintain that status."

Concerning wages, the brief stated that the railroad executives had concluded that "if that question must be met and dealt with, it must be at a later stage."

"In connection with efficiency and economy of operation the question may be raised whether railway wages are reasonable under existing conditions. For the determination of wages of railway labor there is a procedure described by federal law. This procedure involves in the case of a dispute three possible steps, the last of which is alternative. First, conferences between the railway management and the representatives of railway labor, second, the intervention of boards of mediation in the event the conferences result in disagreement, third, arbitration in the event the two preceding steps fail or if either party refuses to arbitrate a finding of facts by a commission appointed by the president."

Authority Declares All Women Are Beautiful

By International News Service

SAN FRANCISCO "All women are beautiful, regardless of generation."

Thus declares a man who has been and still is a generally recognized authority on the subject, Charles Dana Gibson, famed illustrator and creator of the "Gibson Girl" who charmed all America in the '90s.

Now 63, and white haired, the artist is making his first visit to California since 1908.

Generations do not make any change in the beauty of woman, Gibson believes. Asked what type of American girl he favored, Gibson said:

"I might have given you an answer to that twenty years ago, but today I am not favoring any particular type. All are charming.

"I am a stockholder in three generations of beautiful women," he continued. "My wife, my daughter and my grandchildren. Far be it from me to criticise any particular generation, or to make any comparisons."

Children To Be Given Instruction in Music

By International News Service

ST. LOUIS – Underprivileged children of St. Louis will have an opportunity to secure a musical education if the plans of a newly organized committee materialize.

The committee is attempting to raise a fund of $20,000 which, leaders say, will provide instruction for at least 400 youngsters who otherwise would be unable to secure any kind of a musical education.

"Some of these children are talented, some are not; but they all love music, and music brings out their finer character traits, as nothing else will do," J. Lionberger Davis, prominent banker and chairman of the committee, said.

Asks House Investigation of Ohio Judicial Council

Representative King of Vinton County Charges Body Is Accepting Gifts from Persons, Companies Having Cases Before Supreme Court.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 17—A resolution calling for an investigation of the Judicial Council of Ohio, an organization of jurists and barristers which is now conducting a survey of judicial administration in Ohio, was before the house of representatives today.

The resolution, introduced by Representative E. R. King, Republican of Vinton county, charged the council of which Chief Justice C. T. Marshall of the state supreme court is the directing head has been accepting and soliciting contributions from persons and firms who have litigation before the supreme court.

Questioning the propriety of this situation, King asked for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the activities of the council and other agencies joined with it in the study of judicial administration.

Hearing Late This Week

The resolution probably will come up for action the latter part of this week or the first of next.

King said the council was allowed $6,000 in 1929 and despite a section of law limiting its disbursements to $1,000 a year and that it is now seeking a substantial appropriation.

The council was organized by an act of the legislature. It is composed of three members of the supreme court and a number of common pleas and appellate court judges and attorneys.

According to King, funds were solicited for the survey in which it is now engaged. He said that Samuel Mather, O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen and Cyrus S. Eaton of Cleveland, each contributed $15,000.

Lists Contributors

Among the other contributors he listed were: John L. Severance and W. G. Mather of Cleveland, $7,500 each, the Goodyear company of Akron and Procter & Gamble company of Cincinnati, $6,000; Joseph R. Nutt and Newton D. Baker of Cleveland; the law firm of Squires, Sanders & Dempsey of Cleveland, and Barnard H. Kroger of Cincinnati, $3,000 each. Powell Crosley of Cincinnati, $1,500. Others from Akron, Cincinnati and Cleveland making contributions of $2,000 and less were named by King.

The resolution provides that the investigating committee shall file a copy of its report with the justices of the supreme court and the Ohio state bar association.

Belgian Girl Wins World's Beauty Title at Galveston

By The Associated Press

GALVESTON, Tex., June 17—A black-haired Belgian girl, Netta Duchateau, 17, has received the beauty crown of Miss Universe.

She possesses enough courage to fly an airplane but broke down before acclaim that came with her selection in the twelfth annual international beauty pageant here last night.

Tired perhaps from a long parade before judges and spectators, Miss Duchateau all but swooned when the crown was placed on her head. She left the stage, clasped her chaperone in her arms and wept.

A typical modern girl, athletic, blonde, Miss United States, Anne Lee Patterson, of Ludlow, Ky., was defeated by the old world brunette.

The judges' choice is five feet 6¾ inches tall and weighs 127 pounds, considerably bigger than Miss United States.

Miss Belgium cannot speak English. Her chaperone said the girl was graduated from high school last year and had obtained a pilot's license.

A stage contract and perhaps a chance at the movies await Miss Duchateau, the first foreign girl to win the pageant title since 1929. She was awarded $2,500 and a silver plaque. Miss Patterson, the runner-up, received $500.

Miss Memphis, Tenn., black-haired Lena Thomas, hotel hostess, took third prize of $250.

AGENTS' QUIET WORK TRAPS GANG LEADER

Careful Attention to Detail Piles Up Evidence Against Al Capone.

gence unit of the internal revenue bureau did its work.

A delinquent income tax return filed by Ralph Capone in 1927 started their investigation of gang finance and touched off the fuse that eventually blew most of the Capone leaders prisonward.

Al's Case Difficult

While this and other cases were being worked up, the "big boy," himself was the principal target of the government men. Al Capone's income was under investigation for two and a half years. And it was in his case that the government agents found their hardest work.

"Scarface Al" was more wary than any of the others. He dealt almost entirely in currency. His dealings were only with the heads of various under-organizations, the transactions rarely taking form in writing. He kept no records, no bank account, executed no notes, held no stock openly, had no real estate in his own name. Discovery of his many aliases was an extremely difficult task in itself.

Twenty-five men in the Chicago office, assisted by operatives from other states, spent much of their time for 30 months before United States District Attorney George E. A. Johnson, who had won every gangster income tax case, said he was "ready to go to bat."

The mass of evidence was so great that Capone, after conferences with his attorneys that were reported to have lasted three days decided for the first time in his life to say "guilty."
